

Maine Coastal Itinerary

Day 1

The Maine Beaches

Think of your first memories of the beach.

The warm sand beneath your feet. The sea breeze on your face. The sounds of people having about as much fun as people can have. And there you were, with the thrilling feeling that at that moment, on that beach, everything was possible. Does it seem like only yesterday? In Maine it was – for anyone who spent yesterday in Maine's Beaches Region, a dazzling stretch of white sand beaches an hour north of Boston and a bit south of Portland, from Kittery to Old Orchard Beach.

Start your trip by stopping in York on the way to Ogunquit to check out one of Maine's most photographed lighthouses, Cape Neddick Lighthouse, or Nubble Light, as it's commonly called. Being so close to shore, you can clearly see the lighthouse with its Victorian-style keeper's house and red roof from Sohier Park.

Continue on your way to Ogunquit. Once there, stroll along Marginal Way's beautiful one-mile coastal walk for panoramic ocean views before arriving at Perkins Cove. If you are an art lover, now is a great time to take a peek at the artworks housed in the Ogunquit Museum of American Art. If you prefer a leisurely day on the beach, bring a picnic and stay a while at Ogunquit Beach, a 3.5-mile white sand beach.

Once you've had your fill of the beach, settle down for the night at centrally located Meadowmere Resort in Ogunquit. With all its amenities, you will be sure to have a restful night's sleep.

Day 2

Maine Beaches/Portland

On day two of your journey, enjoy more adventures in Kennebunkport. Explore Dock Square to see where sailboats and schooners have been built for centuries, as well as the well-preserved mansions built by sea captains. Dock Square is also the place to do your souvenir shopping and a great place to grab something tasty to eat.

After a quick stop in Kennebunk, continue on your way to Portland. There is a lot to do once you arrive in Maine's largest city, including Maine Day Ventures' Maine Foodie Tours to taste the culinary mastery of Bon Appetit's Restaurant City of the Year, and a Portland City and Lighthouse Tour with Portland Discovery that takes you around the city and out to Portland Head Lighthouse on a trolley. Don't miss exploring the Old Port, which is home to cobblestone streets, boutique shops, historic brick buildings and amazing restaurants ranging from lobster shacks to upscale dining.

For the more active, pedal around with Summer Feet Cycling and for the beer enthusiast, jump aboard the Maine Brews Cruise.

After this long day, rest your head at the historic Portland Regency in Portland. Relax in the on-site spa or enjoy a cocktail in their award-winning lounge.

Day 3

Mid-Coast

Today is all about Maine's midcoast. Start your day off by learning about Maine's deeply rooted ties to the ocean at the Maine Maritime Museum in Bath before heading off to Rockland. Don't miss the only surviving historic wooden shipyard in the country.

Next stop – Rockland! Walk out on the Rockland Breakwater to surround yourself by boats in the harbor before reaching the Rockland Harbor Breakwater Light. Rockland is also home to the Farnsworth Art Museum, which showcases an impressive collection of Maine's role in American art.

From Rockland, make your way to Camden. Hike the trails at Camden Hills State Park to reach the summits of Mount Megunticook and Mount Battie, providing stunning views of downtown Camden and Penobscot Bay. Explore downtown, which is full of shops and the perfect place to watch boats come and go. Get out on the water by climbing aboard a windjammer for an afternoon sail.

If you feel like venturing out before settling down for the night, travel to Lincolnville to find Cellardoor Winery for tours and tastings.

Stay the night at 16 Bay View in Camden. This 100-year-old industrial building has been transformed into a luxury hotel with a great downtown location and rooftop bar overlooking the harbor.

Day 4

Bar Harbor & Acadia National Park

Keep making your way up the coast and visit Downeast Maine for the fourth day of your journey. Explore Acadia National Park. Use free transportation on the Island Explorer or take a trolley tour with Oli's Trolley throughout Bar Harbor and the park, letting you sit back, relax and take in the beauty of the park and charming coastal town.

Within Acadia, Cadillac Mountain, Sand Beach, Thunder Hole and Bass Harbor Head Light are not to be missed. Enjoy the Carriage Roads of Acadia, a network of 57 miles of woodland roads free of motor vehicles and perfect for biking, walking and horse-drawn carriage rides. Listen to the resounding boom of Thunder Hole or take in the Bass Harbor Head Light balancing on the edge of a rocky cliff.

Take a walk through downtown Bar Harbor to see boats on the water and explore its many shops. Or you can enjoy the shops and restaurants in Southwest Harbor, known as the "quiet side" of Mt. Desert Island.

If you are looking for more adventure, try sea kayaking with National Park Sea Kayak Tours or rock climbing with Acadia Mountain Guides Climbing School.

Finish your visit by staying at the Bar Harbor Grand Hotel in Bar Harbor, only a couple minutes' walk from the waterfront and a short distance from Acadia National Park.
